Diana's corporate job took her on many overseas assignments, which prevented her from getting home on weekends. She took these opportunities to visit various gardens and parks around the world. It was a great departure and stress reliever from her corporate job. In addition, as time permanent she did a "fixer-upper" of a house that required a complete landscape design. Gardening for over 23 years, Diana became a truly dedicated gardener about 7 years ago when she started her own landscape design firm.

When asked about her areas of special interest, Diana will laugh and tell you it "varies by year". Diana is a landscape professional who now does this professionally for other people. She is most interested in continuing education. Constantly seeking new and different landscape design concepts and plants that can be successfully incorporate into landscape designs in the DFW area. Always challenged by the new, unique and diversity which can be added to the garden with different textures and colors, Diana continues to travel the globe and bring the new and exciting back to Dallas. Constantly learning, Diana is always available to share the information she has gathered.
